Not illustrated. 1919 Excerpt: . . . extensive and formal expansion of established activities which have been developing for two, three or more years, but which could not assume their rightful place in the full program of the Organization until thoroughly equipped, full-time-salaried secretaries could be secured to direct them. For example, membership extension has grown steadily with almost no stimulation. But even this has entailed much exacting, pains taking work on the part of the chairmen of the membership and eligibility committees who in the persons of Mrs. R. L. Ireland, Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Miss Mary Magoun Brown, Mrs. C. C. Bolton, Jr. , Miss Yssabella G. Walters, and Mrs. Edna Whitelaw Ketchum have given, over a period of seven years, gratuitous labor and thought, which can not be adequately appraised. The work of the eligibility committee has required and has had a genuine human, as well as professional, interest which has established most friendly and helpful relations, not only between individuals and the Organization, but between hospitals, training schools and alumnae associations. No unfortunate nurse has ever been told in a perfunctory or arbitrary manner that she was ineligible for active membership. On the contrary each individual has been encouraged and helped, at the least possible cost of time and loss of income, to overcome her handicap. In very many instances negotiations for special post-graduate work have been conducted by the chairman of the eligibility committee in behalf of such nurses. In the same way, candidates, and often their alumnae...
