The meeting was called to order by Mr. E. J. McDermott, of Louisville, as follows: In behalf of The Louisville Bar Association, gentlemen, I welcome you. This association and the Covington Bar Association have called this meeting in the hope that a useful and permanent State association may be established. We have not forgotten the wrecks of the past. We do not deceive ourselves with Utopian dreams of future power and glory. We know the difficulties, but we feel that we can accomplish at least a little in a field wherein the lawyers of other States have done much. What Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, New York and the other States have done we can do. We are behind them in some things, but we are not by nature incompetent to deal with the organization of the bar and the reform of palpable evils in the administration of justice. In some of the best States such associations have flourished for twenty years and have brought about practical reforms. If we can exist for five years, we shall greatly benefit the State and our profession. We certainly need to take counsel together. The status of the bench and bar can not be regarded as gratifying by any thoughtful lawyer among us. In the first place, the method of examining and admitting lawyers to the bar is absurd. Six months...
